

2009-2010 Webinar Series for Professional Women

More Strategies for Work Life Management

November 13, 2009 12:00 - 1:00 pm PST

Most women realize that true balance between their professional lives and personal lives is elusive. They try to manage their ever-shifting priorities as best as they can and know that they have to make trade-offs at work and at home. Successful women develop a personal system that allows them to give "enough" time to all the critical areas in their life and focus on strategically sequencing activities that restore rather than deplete energy. Two women will share the time-tested techniques that work for them and their thoughts on corporate programs that help working women.
